In this issue: What’s New?

Deacons are often referred to as the hands and feet of Jesus. Deacon Kevin Laubach incorporated a clever hint of “hands” in the CDM’s new logo.

The CDM’s new brochure, which will soon be mailed out to all churches, is not only a handy resource for deacons, but also provides others with an overview of the wider work of diaconal ministry in the OPC.

The new website created just for OPC deacons provides information about the work of the CDM and offers a wide variety of resources for deacons. Visit OPCCDM.org.

In October, the CDM hosted the Fourth Presbytery Diaconal Summit (PDS IV) for members of Presbytery Diaconal Committees (PDC). In attendance were 37 men representing 12 presbyteries. Presentations covered PDCs in service to presbyteries, congregations, and deacons, as well as an introduction to the work of the Committee on Ministerial Care (CMC). Videos of the PDS IV presentations can be found at OPCCDM.org under “Training.”
